

Now With F.M.L.

I was "back home in Indiana" over the weekend. And around Michigan and the Chicago area.

Thomas Wolf is right. No matter how things are, "You Can't Go Home Again," the title of one of his autobiographical novels.

At a high school reunion, I saw people I hadn't seen in a decade or longer.

Friends are still friends, if not more so. But this kind is operating out of memory which at best is warm and faulty. It's difficult to look at a person and pick up a conversation interrupted by more than 20 years, divergent education and miles of forgotten individual experiences.

The tennis was easy. And they've gone just as mad about the sport in recent years as everywhere else. It's where I started the game as a competitor.

A former high school teammate and I played six (count 'em) 6 sets of doubles one morning, starting about 7 a.m. He is a contractor and gets up somewhere about 5. He always did, running muskrat traps and hunting before breakfast on and around the lake which was his backyard. We had played a lot of competitive tennis together in Northern Indiana.

The remarkable thing about this area and this class is that 50 per cent of them are still in the community and neighboring counties they grew up in. The abundance of jobs and continuing development in that lake and industrial area are amazing.

I learned another friend had become general attorney for an oil company in Tulsa. Several others are doctors, lawyers, engineers and otherwise skilled.

One I hoped to see, possibly one of the best minds that school yielded, never showed from Alabama. And one I had forgotten, who had been a gifted young artist, showed, and said he was doing other things. He drives trucks. The other runs a couple of restaurants. Worthy skills, of course, but not what these guys might have done.

They are probably content. "Setting the curve" is more demanding beyond the university than any classroom quiz or curriculum.

I left with ambivalent feelings about the experience, a sort of satisfaction I could renew and dissatisfaction with the way I remembered people and things.

It's not enough to leave 'em laughing. And a few tears.

Hair Styles Relaxed

MCGREGOR

Boys hair styles in McGregor schools were relaxed some after vote by the school board. The code will now allow "hair to be groomed not beneath the middle of the ear." Sideburns are limited in length, clean shaving is required, and muscle shirts or tank tops are taboo, except in kindergarten and elementary grades.

Inflation Hits Bell Budget

BELTON

Inflation hit Bell County government in full force last week, when budget requests soared past the $4.5 million mark with something like $4.7 million the probable closing figure. Requests for 1975 funds were up about a third over current budgeted expenses. The current budget totals $3.5 million.

Mission Named Landmark

SOMERVILLE

The historic San Salvador Mission Church in Burleson County has been recently named a Recorded Texas Historic Landmark. The church is a mission of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Bryan, and was built in 1908 when devout families each gave cotton from ten field rows to buy materials and the men built the structure.

Car-Train Collision Kills Youth

HEARNE

Edward J. Porter, 18, of Hearne, was killed instantly when his car collided about 3:30 p.m. August 2 with a Missouri-Pacific freight train on Farm Road 1644 about four miles from Hearne. Highway patrolmen investigating the accident said they did not know if Porter saw the approaching freight train. He was a student at Hearne High School.

Speeding Tickets On Increase

GEORGETOWN

Sgt. Fred Hurst of the Department of Public Safety says only about 50 percent of the drivers in Williamson County are obeying the 55 mph speed limit. The number of speeding tickets being issued is up 2 1/2 times what it was this time last year, Hurst said.

Tax Valuations Going Up

GATESVILLE

Coryell County's tax valuations will take a $4 million leap this year, according to preliminary figures released by the tax collector. New construction is primarily responsible for the jump and the growth has been pretty general over the county.

San Gabriel Field Yields Old Indian Relics

Bones unearthed by a chisel plow near San Gabriel last week are believed to be at least 1300 years old, and were identified as those of Indians who roamed the region for hundreds of years.

The bones were uncovered by Charles Camp, of San Gabriel, who was chisel plowing land that has lain undisturbed for over 20 years.

Camp, a native of San Gabriel and an ardent collector of Indian artifacts, said at least 10 or 12 bodies, including babies and children, were buried in the common grave, with burnt bone fragments indicating that at least one of the bodies had been cremated before burial.

Small and large arrowheads, a few stone beads, and conch shell ornaments were also found with the bones. The most outstanding feature of the find, according to a University of Texas archeologist who examined it was the conch shell jewelry.

Archeologist Elton Pruett said the only other place such shell ornaments are found is in the coastal area of Texas near Brownsville and Matagorda. He did not speculate as to how the shells found their way to the Central Texas area.

Pruett said he would be visiting the San Gabriel area and studying the bones at more length next week. He said the area was noted for six or seven Spanish missions and is rich in Indian artifacts.

Camp said he understands that Indians of that era did not live in tribes as they did later when the white man came, but lived in small groups which hunted lizards and other small game for food. He said the Indians were small in stature and contrary to folklore, did not bury bodies in orderly graves but as shown by the discovery in the field, laid the bodies every which way, which resulted in a tangle of bones.

Parts of jawbones littered the grave, with undecayed teeth still intact. One of the small arrow points was found embedded in a hip bone.

Camp, who has an enormous collection of arrow heads, spear points, and other Indian artifacts, said he has been collecting them since he was a small boy, and added that when he plows he subconsciously keeps a lookout for signs of Indian relics. He was doing so when he found the latest cache of bones.

Other residents of San Gabriel tell of the abundance of Indian relics in the area, and speculate that the spot was popular with Indians as a camping ground. Charred stones found in the area along the river testify to this theory, as do grinding stones in Camp's collections.

INDIAN RELICS unearthed in a San Gabriel field last week led to discovery of a common grave with 10 or 12 bodies. The skull in this picture was nearly intact when found, but cracked up upon handling. Conch shell ornaments, center of picture, are a rare find for Central Texas, being common only along the Texas coast.

Cattle Receipts Drop To 150 At Auction Barn

Cattle receipts at the Cameron Livestock Auction were way down Thursday with only 150 animals consigned for sale. At this time last year receipts were 924.

Auction officials said there were too few cattle on hand to establish market trends.

Prices looked to be about the same as last week with slaughter calves selling for $34 to $37 and feeder steers at $32 to $36. Feeder heifers went for $30 to $33 and cow and calf pairs at $325 to $450 for choice and $260 ad $325 for good.

Recent rains may be having an effect on the market as renewed prospects for pasture grasses are probably causing more producers to hold off selling in hopes of higher prices.

A serious drought in the mid-west part of the United States shows signs of leading to shortages of feed and experts predict cattle prices will rise this fall or winter. The cattle market has been depressed since early spring.

Library Reports Record Checkouts

A record number of books, 2,020, was checked out of the Cameron Public Library in July, Mrs. Willis Looney, librarian reports.

She added that one book was sent to Goose Bay, Labrador, on inter-library loan. The book was "History of Milam County," by Mrs. Lelia M. Batte.

Area Schools List Registration, Band Practice, Starting Dates

Schedules for registration of high school, junior high school and elementary have been announced by school officials this week.

Yoe High Juniors and seniors will register Wednesday, August 21 with seniors registering from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and juniors from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Thursday, August 22, sophomores and all new students will register from 9 a.m. until 12 noon. Freshmen will register from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. Thursday.

Junior high schedules includes grades 6-8 to register from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and 1 to 3 p.m. Wednesday, August 21. Students should report to the gym.

Thursday, August 22 will be registration day for all new students at junior high who should report to the school office between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

Registration for Ada Henderson and Ben Milam schools will be just for new students who have not attended Cameron schools. Students will register at the principals office from 9 a.m. until 12 noon.

Yoe Band Practice

The Yoe High Band is starting rehearsals this evening from 7 until 9 a.m. and will be practicing both playing and marching, said Jerry Bartley, school band director. All band students should dress accordingly.

Bartley also announced that for the first time, any student may now be able to take both sixth, seventh and eighth grade band and PE simultaneously.

"This will be an advantage which will allow especially boys to take band and PE or band and football throughout junior high as well as high school," Bartley said. "The opportunity to take both now will definitely aid in the students all-around public school education in Cameron."

Bill Huffman, junior high principal, asks that all boys and girls who want to take advantage of this new policy change contact him at his office, 697-2131 before the first day of classes.

A junior high and senior high twirling clinic was held last week along with a high school percussion clinic. Director for the twirling lines was Kym Thompson of Abernathy and director for the percussion section was Bruce Bray, also of Abernathy.

School Opening Dates

August 19 is the starting date for Rogers, Milam, and Rosebud-Lott schools with Rockdale opening classes a week later, August 26. Cameron schools will also start August 26, and Buckholts schools on August 19.

Rogers classes will be from 8:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. said school Supt. Wayne Cornelius. An enrollment of 665 is expected, an increase from 647 students last year.

Rogers high school students will make necessary schedule changes from 9 a.m. until noon August 14 and 15 in the high school office.

Holidays for Rogers will include Labor Day Sept. 2, Nov. 28 and 29 Thanksgiving; Christmas Dec. 23-Jan. 5; and Easter March 24 through 30. Students will also have holidays on teacher workdays.

Classes at Rosebud-Lott will be from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. said Supt. Earl Cook. About 1,050 students are expected, as predicted by the spring registration of last year. The 11 bus routes will run on schedules of last year on the first day of school. The cafeteria will serve hot lunches.

Rockdale's classes will begin August 26 with an enrollment of 1675 students, about 45 more students than last year. The school day will run from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. for Rockdale High School with closing times for junior high and elementary yet to be determined.

This will be Rockdale's first year under new Supt. Dr. Walter Vincent who succeeds retiring J. M. Moorman, superintendent at Rockdale for 19 years.

Milam schools will start classes

August 19 with in-service training for teachers on August 15 and 16. The school is under the direction of a new superintendent, Charlie R. Martin.

School hours will be from 9:05 a.m. until 4:10 p.m. each day. Buses will run the same schedules as last year and the cafeteria will be serving lunches on the first day of school with prices the same as last year.

Registration for high school students will start at 1:30 p.m. Friday, August 16.

School Board To Meet

Cameron school trustees will meet Monday (tonight) at 8 p.m. at Ben Milam School for the purpose of adopting a school budget for the 1974-75 year. The public is invited to attend.

STORY HOUR at the Cameron library is enjoyed with undivided interest by this group of children. Old favorites and new adventures hold the youngsters' attention, along with action games. Friends of the Library sponsored the treat.

Good Luck, Mr. Ford...

It is tragic.

Richard Nixon resigned under his own party's duress Thursday night.

Predecessor Lyndon Johnson chose not to chance re-election in a similar dramatic, televised statement.

And predecessor John Kennedy was shot down in the streets of Dallas.

The political process either is preambled restoration in time for the 1976 Bicentennial. Or it is amuck.

None of the senators, congressmen or television commentators saw anything but a turn for better, more positive and open government in Gerald Ford's elevation.

But what about the American people, who look upon politics as a game played, as one obscure observer said Thursday night, by "politicians who are all crooked?"

By that token, another man on the street voiced not only a desire to learn about Watergate and Mr. Nixon's duplicity, but also a desire for vengeance.

If we have nothing but "crooks" in high places, who puts them there? Is the public "conscience" purged by imprisoning ex-presidents?

Mr. Ford is probably as scrupulous a public man to enter the White House as any modern tenant. He is surely the most investigated. But he was not elected. Richard Nixon appointed him, after Spiro Agnew shot himself down.

None of this--resignation, refusal to seek re-election, assassination-means anything unless the constitutional process is restored in the marketplace as its processes removed a president. Public office must find a lower economic profile.

It is remarkable the system works even as this trauma unfolds. It is a remarkable lesson in self-government and constitutional review.

If President Ford, the appointive "Mr. Clean", is as fortunate in the public forum as 14 years of predecessors, something bizarre will happen to him.

And we are confident public cynicism would then rule which is to say anarchy. To which the response will be some form of dictatorship.

We wish this President well.

No Such Weakness...

We understand 2,020 books were checked out at Cameron Public Library in July. It is a record, attributable to introducing pocketbooks and a growing number of hardbacks.

Time was that a monthly checkout of 200 books was considered the norm.

Times are that information is as important as view point. The deeper the background on a subject, the less likely a superficial, inflexible, generally incompetent response will occur.

There is no excuse for not reading something regularly. The local paper and a good daily newspaper are starters. Then a current events magazine and some special interest publication to continue. And finally, a few of those 10,000 plus books which suddenly find an enormous checkout ratio.

Most people realize that a modern Cameron began with that modern library. It took five years to build.

Those 2,020 books during July are testimony to the strength of readership and ever-broadening horizons of people in the Milam area, which no longer is merely Cameron or Milam County.

Your Herald has dealt with inflexible responses for years, people somehow thinking a new position was admission of weakness. The unwillingness to grow is weakness.

And it is a weakness Cameron's library never has been required to acknowledge.

Mid- West Drought Holds Promise Of Higher Prices

By Ronald Clarke

Reuter-- Farmer Leroy Hufford gazed across his Illinois farmland and muttered in disgust: "They say the corn should be as high as an elephant's eye -- well, some of it will hardly reach your kneecaps."

It is a sign that could mean housewives will be paying more for meat, poultry and eggs next year.

Across the rich farmlands of the Mid-West, farmers like Hufford, who owns 750 acres with his brother, Tom, 100 miles southwest of Chicago, are blaming bad weather conditions and wondering how much they are going to harvest this year.

Their crops of corn and the protein-rich soybeans provide feed for cattle, pigs and chickens. A poor crop would push up the price of the feed and cause farmers to reduce their livestock. Price increases in the crops would follow.

The United States has in recent years exported more than half its soybean crop and nearly a quarter of its corn. Importing countries would also feel the price pinch of a poor crop.

The oil from soybeans is used for soap, paint, cooking oil and cement. Less soybean oil could also put up the prices of these products.

Farmers say increasing costs of fertilizer and fuel made planting in April and early May the most expensive in U. S. history. Then came the rain, described politely by official forecasters as unseasonably heavy.

It turned many fields into quagmires and delayed further already sprayed on the fields and more had to be put down.

In some areas seeds were washed out and farmers had to plant for a second time. In other areas, first planting was long delayed.

After the rain came weeks without even a shower, causing almost a drought.

Traders on the floor of the Chicago Board of Trade, the world's biggest grain exchange, are now paying high prices for future corn and soybean crops in the belief that a recent spate of rain in the Midwest will not be enough to end the near-drought conditions.

Latest reports by regional offices of the U. S. Department of Agriculture paint a pessimistic picture in many parts of the Midwest. The Iowa office said the rainfall in the western part of the state was below normal for the sixth successive week.

The Nebraska office reported, in its technical phrasing: "Topsoil moisture supplies are reported short in 98 percent of the counties. The Illinois office said 'soil moisture is 87 percent short, 13 percent absolute.'"

Other offices gave brighter reports, but the overall picture was far from good.

Many farm experts are reluctant to forecast the size of the U. S. Soybean harvest this year. But the Department of Agriculture said at the beginning of this month the crop would total 1.450 billion bushels, compared with the record crop of 1.570 million bushels last year.

The Department said the maize crop was expected to total between 5.9 billion bushels and 6.3 billion bushels. Early this year the Department had predicted a crop totalling 6.7 billion bushels.

Hufford tugged off the old baseball cap he always wears when working and said he and his brother could still have a passable crop. "But we would need rain and sunshine to order," he said.

Temple Defeats Tax Vote

Temple voters defeated Temple Junior College's proposed maintenance and operation tax increase in a special election held August 6.

The voter turnout was extremely light. Of the 1,393 votes cast in the election, 415 were in support of the tax increase and 978 were against it. Persons living in the Temple Independent School District were eligible to vote.

As a result of the election, the TJC tax rate will remain at a total of 25¢ PER $100 valuation which will be apportioned to 17¢ for maintenance and operation and 8¢ for bond debt retirement.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

Senator Hubert Humphrey ... An article by Dr. Arthur Schlesinger on the Vice-Presidency (in Atlantic Monthly) concluded that, "There is no escape, it seems to me, from the conclusion that the vice presidency is not only a meaningless but a hopeless office."

"In my article (in the Atlantic Monthly) I concluded that Dr. Schlesinger was incorrect and that the Vice-Presidency is necessary."

"My reason for this conclusion are as follows:

"First, the Vice-Presidency provides an unencumbered clear-cut method of succession in the case the President is disabled, cannot perform his duties or dies in office."

"Second, the Vice-President is a nationally elected officer. And, in being elected rather than appointed, his independence from the Congress and others who might be involved in another type of selection process is preserved."

"Third, under our present system, the Vice-President is nominated at the same convention as the President, by the same delegates as the President, and conducts his campaign under the same party auspices as the President. All of this tends to assure that the successor is in close harmony with the party..."

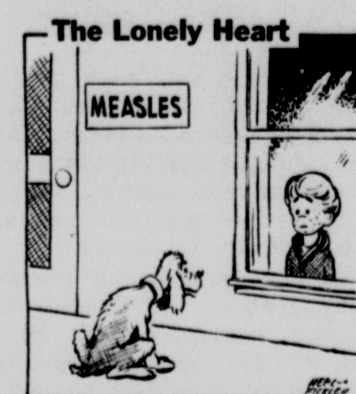

"I am unimpressed by the argument used by Professor Schlesinger that Mr. Agnew was Nixon's Nixon. So what? Henry Wallace was at times Roosevelt's Roosevelt, Lyndon Johnson was at times Kennedy's Kennedy. And I am proud to say that I was a good deal of the time Johnson's Johnson. It is a part of the political process. We don't appoint Presidents..."

"It is absurd to cast it aside merely because in recent days it has been touched by scandal and because in the past there were men of mediocrity or less who were selected as Vice President and did not live up to the standards that we expected of them. We also have had some weak and ineffective Presidents who have disappointed us, but Professor Schlesinger in not asking, 'Is the Office of the President necessary?'"

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

It's apparent that Dr. Schlesinger is working in an "Ivory Tower."

"Will there be enough electric power to meet my needs next month? Next year?"

Shortages and predicted shortages of electricity in various parts of the country are causing many people to wonder, "Will there be enough electric power to meet my needs next month? Next year?"

Texas Power & Light wants its customers to know what it has done, and is doing, to maintain adequate and dependable electric service.

TP&L surmounted a critical situation in November and December of 1972 when unusually cold weather caused an abnormally high demand for energy for heating. Two natural gas suppliers curtailed deliveries to the Company to the extent that nearly 10 million gallons of fuel oil were required to operate power plants. On an around-the-clock schedule, truck convoys kept plants supplied with oil.

During 1973, in anticipation of possible further gas curtailments, the Company increased its oil storage capacity to some 42 million gallons at its generating plants. An additional 42 million gallons of storage capacity is now under construction.

To improve and assure its supply of natural gas, TP&L is participating in exploration and drilling for gas and developing storage reservoirs in East Texas.

Because of the sharply rising costs and uncertain future supplies of gas and oil, TP&L and other electric utility companies in the Southwest are shifting to lignite -- a form of soft coal -- as a power plant fuel. TP&L has acquired major deposits of lignite in East and Northeast Texas. Two lignite-fueled units are already supplying electricity to TP&L customers, seven other units are now under construction and an eighth unit will be started soon. One or more lignite-fueled units is scheduled to go into service in each of the years from 1975 to 1980.

However, even all the new lignite-fueled plants the Company can build will not be sufficient to meet anticipated future electric needs of TP&L customers. So, in 1972, TP&L, Dallas Power & Light and Texas Electric Service announced plans to build a nuclear-fueled plant. The first unit of the plant is expected to be in operation in 1980 and the second in 1982.

Planning and building generating plants, keeping plants supplied with fuel and doing the hundreds of other things necessary to produce and supply electric power is a complex and costly job. You can be confident that Texas Power & Light will continue doing what must be done to assure you a dependable supply of electricity in the years ahead.

Applications Now Open For TJC Nursing School

Applications now are being taken for Temple Junior College's Licensed Vocational Nursing class scheduled to begin early in September, Stanley W. Churchill, Dean of the Technical-Vocational Division, has announced.

A student who enters the 52-week program which makes the graduate eligible to take State Board examinations for certification as an LVN will spend the first 17 weeks of the program in the classroom.

In the classroom segment of LVN study, students are introduced to the basic sciences in short-term instruction covering such areas as anatomy, microbiology, nutrition, pharmacology, mental health, geriatrics, medical-surgical nursing, and pediatrics. A main course in vocational nursing itself also will fill the student's schedule, Churchill said.

After the initial 17 weeks, the student will spend an increasing amount of time in clinical studies with students traveling to area hospitals for this training.

During the course schedule, students have two weeks of vacation or holidays.

To introduce students to the clinical setting before they actually enter the hospital, four teaching beds and the latest hospital equipment are used in the classroom setting.

All applicants to the program must be at least 18 years of age and should have a sincere interest and concern for people, Churchill said. An applicant must have a high school diploma or the General Education Development Test certificate and acceptable scores on an aptitude examination administered to prospective students. Applicants should have a copy of their high school transcripts or GED sent to TJC, he added.

In addition, each applicant is requested to submit three references. These must include three mature persons who are not relatives of the applicant and who can offer information about the application.

TSTI Sets Start Of Fall Term

Enrollment on the James Connally Campus of Texas State Technical Institute is expected to top the 3,000 mark again when the 1974-75 school year begins this September.

E. R. Billings, general manager for instruction, estimated the total enrollment for the fall quarter will be 3,300. Enrollment last September was 3,123.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 3, in the J. H. Kuitgen Automotive Technology Center. Classes will begin the following Thursday.

The start of the fall quarter will mark the beginning of the ninth full year for the James Connally Campus, which was created as a part of the Texas A&M University System. It has since been separated from the A&M System. The James Connally Campus and the other three State Tech campuses, in Harlingen, Amarillo and Sweetwater, are now under the direction of a nine-member board of regents appointed by the governor of Texas.

Blinn Sets

Night

Classes

A student can work full-time and begin his college education at night this fall at Blinn College.

Blinn will offer night classes at Brenham in English, History, Real Estate, and Law Enforcement. The Bryan Branch of Blinn, located in the Kraft Building, will offer night classes in the same subjects along with classes in Government, Business, Biology, Chemistry, Economics, Speech and Mathematics, Psychology, and Sociology.

Henry J. Boehn, Dean of Instruction, said, "Blinn will offer classes at night in any subject so long as there are ten or more students interested in taking the course. Please let your needs be known to me or to William R. Perry, Dean of Admissions."

All of the courses apply toward the Associate of Arts degree from Blinn College and will transfer to senior colleges and universities.

The Real Estate courses meet the educational requirements for renewal of the Salesman's License and application for the Texas Real Estate License for Brokers. One course is required for the renewal of the Salesman's License, and three courses are required for the Broker's License.

Hearing Set On Postal Services

Congressman Bill Alexander, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Rural Development, said Thursday that the Subcommittee will hold hearings in September to examine the effect of current postal policies on mail service in the countryside.

The Subcommittee is a part of the House Committee on Agriculture.

In exercising its oversight function, Alexander said that the Subcommittee would examine specific problem areas and use its findings to recommend policy changes to the United States Postal Service. He also said that though the Subcommittee does not have legislative authority in this area it can suggest changes in postal law.

"Since the creation of USPS as a quasi-independent agency three years ago, we have seen rural post offices eliminated, personnel phased out and an apparent deterioration of service to the countryside," Alexander said.

"We want to identify the effects of this and possibly some alternatives to the trend. The local post office and good postal service appear to be as important to the growth and development of communities today as the general store was to the town of the Old West."

Alexander emphasized that he feels the Postal Service has many postmen, clerks, drivers, and postmasters who try to give good services under difficult circumstances.

The Subcommittee schedule calls for hearings in Washington on September 17, 18, and 19.

Russian Sable Most Precious (Costly) Fur

By Patrick Worsnip

Reuter - An extended clearing in the birch and fir forest north of Moscow is the site of the Soviet Union's major contribution to the fashion industry.

Here is situated the Pushkino fur farm, where the mink takes second place to the most precious commodity in the international fur trade - the fabulous Russian black sable.

The pelt of one sable-a rodent measuring little more than two feet from nose to tail - fetches about $1,250 at fur auctions, and at least 35 pelts are needed to make a coat.

Only six or seven sable coats are known to exist in the world. Britain's Queen Elizabeth and Princess Grace of Monaco are among the owners, and such a coat recently changed hands for $100,000 in Canada. Most sable fur goes on trimmings.

It has been illegal to export live sables from Russia-their only habitat-since the 16 century when Ivan the Terrible made it a capital crime. Pushkino is now the largest of only six Soviet farms which breed the creatures.

The farm's director, Siso Stepanovich Kochenov, tells visitors that a recent offer from an American farmer of $50,000 for a pair of sables was turned down.

Kochenov, a powerful-looking middle-aged man with the confident smile of one who has fulfilled his five-year plan in four years, wears an open-necked short-sleeved white nylon shirt as he greets guests on a hot summer's day.

A former communist-party worker and sometime journalist, he studied fur-farming for three years before taking over the Pushkino farm in 1962, when production was at a low ebb.

Now the 185 acre farm, 27 miles from the capital, has 110,000 animals, over 10,000 sables, some 15,000 silver and arctic foxes, and the rest mink.

Profitability is now 64 per cent, and earnings last year totaled more than $375 million, with 49 per cent of profits on this wholly state-owned farm going to the government.

"From a capitalist point of view," says Kochenov, "We're doing all right."

With one fifth of all fur production - and the entire sable production - being sold to foreign buyers in auctions at Leningrad, London and elsewhere, the farm is an important earner of foreign currency.

The total wild population of the sable is not known exactly, but is believed to have increased three or four times since World War II, under government protection in its haunts in forested areas of Siberia and the Soviet far east.

Elizabeth Taylor in "Ash Wednesday" playing Wednesday, portrays a woman, old before her time, who undergoes cosmetic surgery in an effort to win back her straying husband.

She had to undergo hours of makeup sessions to create the harassed socialite.

C/W Stars To Join Golf Turney

Some of the nation's best-known country / western stars will converge on this little East Texas town in September to play golf and then do what they do best, pick, sing and grin, all because rural medicine, which affects them and the people they love the most, rural residents, needs help.

Rusty Wier, Michael Murphy, B. W. Stevenson and Steve Fromholz, exponents of the Austin sound, are among the c/w artists who will appear at the Country/western Celebrity Golf Tournament at nearby Westwood Shores on September 28 and in concert here on the following evening for the benefit of the Trinity Memorial Hospital and Nursing Home where three country doctors are conducting a unique program in rural medicine.

George "Goober" Lindsey, familiar to millions of television viewers of "The Andy Griffith Show," "Mayberry R.F.D." and "Hee Haw," will host the concert.

Trinity is a hotbed of country/western enthusiasm for the entire state. Westwood Shores is a recreational-residential development about two miles southeast at the tip of Lake Livingston. People living in both places and in the surrounding area either sing, play an instrument or simply appreciate the unique American musical lore and, in many cases, do all three! They are fiercely loyal to this style of music and do their favorite performers.

So intense is this loyalty and enthusiasm that a concert hall, the Risin' Sun, was constructed in Trinity. It seats approximately 1,100 persons and regularly features the best in the country/western field, and has for years.

Department Store Planned For Downtown

Lloyd Albertson

Cameron's downtown business section will gain a large new-type department store, according to plans now being completed that call for it to open within the next 60 to 90 days.

Schigut's Department Store owner, John Schigut will be owner and manager of the new facility. The store will be located in the building formerly occupied by the Gordon Baskin Insurance Agency at the corner of First and Houston Streets.

"It will be a new kind of department store for Cameron," Schigut said. "I wouldn't call it a discount store, but our prices for merchandise will compare with discount stores in cities around here."

"We will operate it together with our present store at 204 South Houston. We'll call it 'The Other Place.' My wife thought up the name."

The store will occupy approximately 3,000 square feet of floor space in the former Baskin building, on which remodeling has been under way for several weeks. The entire front will be remodeled, Schigut explained, and alterations will be made throughout. New fixtures will be installed in the next week or two.

"It will be a complete department store," Schigut stated. "We will stock all types of clothes for men, women and children. Sport and dress clothes. Even shoes of all kinds. And accessories such as jewelry."

Other things carried will be items such as towels, sheets, bedspreads and the like. Some other household items possibly will be added later.
